Morgan Lewis

THE EU-US PRIVACY SHIELD

Pulina Whitaker, Mark Krotoski, and Gregory Parks February 24, 2016

Welcome and Introductions

Pulina Whitaker London +44.20.3201.550 pwhitaker@morganlewis.com

Mark L. Krotoski Silicon Valley +1.650.843.7212 mkrotoski@morganlewis.com

Gregory T Parks Philadelphia +1.215.963.5170 gparks@morganlewis.com

Overview of Safe Harbor and Privacy Shield

- 1. EU/US Privacy Framework Agreement in 2000
- 2. Over 4,000 US organizations certified by 2015
- 3. EU Court of Justice issued a ruling in Schrems which ruled that the EU-US Safe Harbor program was invalid on October 6th, 2015
- 4. New EU-US Privacy Shield to replace Safe Harbor announced on February 2, 2016
- 5. Judicial Redress Act of 2015 enables EU citizens to enforce privacy rights in US courts
- 6. Awaiting Article 29 WP guidance on EU-US Privacy Shield

The Schrems Decision

- In October 2015, EU Court of Justice invalidated the EU-US Safe Harbor Agreement
- Key findings of decision:
 - Organizations self-certified under the Safe Harbor program are permitted to "disregard" the Safe Harbor principles to comply with US national security, public interest or law enforcement requirements
 - There is no provision in the Safe Harbor program for protection for EU citizens against US authorities who gain access to their personal data transferred to the US pursuant to the Safe Harbor program. There is only a provision for commercial dispute resolution
 - "The guarantee of independence of national supervisory authorities is intended to ensure the effectiveness and reliability of the monitoring of compliance with the provisions concerning protection of individuals"
 - The powers of supervisory authorities include "effective powers of intervention, such as that of imposing a temporary or definitive ban on processing of data, and the power to engage in legal proceedings"
 - The Safe Harbor program "cannot prevent persons whose personal data has been or could be transferred to a third country from lodging with the national supervisory authorities a claim....concerning the protection of their rights and freedoms"

The Schrems Decision (continued)

- Where the national data protection authorities find that complaints regarding the protection of personal data by Safe Harbor-certified companies are well founded, they "must...be able to engage in legal proceedings"
- The EU Data Protection Directive "requires derogations and limitations in relation to the protection of personal data to apply only in so far as is strictly necessary" but there is no such requirement applicable in the US following the transfer of personal data pursuant to the Safe Harbor program
- The Safe Harbor program "fails to comply with the requirements" to protect personal data to the "adequate" standard required by the EU Data Protection Directive and is, "accordingly invalid"

New EU-US Privacy Shield

- EU Commission announced new "EU-US Privacy Shield" for US organizations, replacing the Safe Harbor program on February 2, 2016:
 - Limitations imposed on US authorities accessing personal data for national security purposes and an oversight mechanism
 - Annual review of these principles
 - EU citizens to have same civil rights of enforcement as US citizens under proposed new Judicial Redress Act
 - EU citizens and EU DPAs can complain to FTC and DoC
 - Needs to be formally adopted by EU Commission (after advice from Article 29 Working Party)

US Perspective on Privacy Shield

- Confusion post-Schrems left many companies without options
- There was much hope for a "Safe Harbor 2.0" n/k/a "Privacy Shield"
- Data transfers need to happen
- US Government, regulators and companies support ultimate adoption
 - FTC promising "robust" enforcement and co-operation with EU authorities
 - Commerce Department pushing for necessary legislative changes

What US Companies Must Do to Use Privacy Shield Protections

- Details currently sparse, but will involve more than simple self certification that existed under Safe Harbor.
- More of an approval process that will involve both declaring and demonstrating commitment to the principles of the EU Data Privacy Directive:
 - Notice information collected and use
 - Choice must give opt out for third party transfer or alternative use; must have opt-in for sensitive information.
 - Onward Transfer third party must comply with adequacy standards
 - Access individuals can learn what information is held, correct or delete
 - Security "reasonable precautions" to protect from loss or misuse; de-identify data
 - Data Integrity reliability of data
- Final principle of enforcement will be significantly increased. Must submit to:
 - Jurisdiction by EU data protection authorities
 - Responding to complaints of EU citizens through Privacy Ombudsman
 - Be bound by decisions of EU authorities on data handling
 - Continued FTC enforcement

EU Commission approved "adequate" Countries

- Countries providing "adequate level of protection":
 - EEA countries EU, Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway
 - Andorra
 - Argentina
 - Canada
 - The Faroe Islands
 - Guernsey
 - Isle of Man
 - Israel
 - Jersey
 - New Zealand
 - Switzerland
 - Uruguay

Judicial Redress Act of 2015

Key Legislative Objectives

- "According to the Department of Justice, the Judicial Redress Act is critical [1] to reestablishing a trusting relationship between the European Union and the United States, [2] to ensuring continued strong law enforcement cooperation between the United States and Europe, and [3] to preserving the ability of American companies to do business internationally." [Cong. Goodlatte]
- "Restore public trust in US privacy protections" [Cong. Goodlatte] [Cong. Collins]
- "[R]ebuild strained relationships with our allies and to ensure privacy and security for both American and European Union citizens" [Cong. Sensenbrenner]
- Promote adoption of the Data Privacy and Protection Agreement [Cong. Goodlatte]

Judicial Redress Act of 2015

- Enables EU citizens from designated countries to enforce privacy rights in US courts
 - Extends same rights under the 1974 Privacy Act to citizens from designated countries
 - AG will designate covered foreign countries
 - Applies to information obtained through international law enforcement channels
- Right of civil action in US court
 - Right to sue the United States Government to access, amend, or redress unlawful disclosures of personal information transferred for law enforcement purposes
 - Redress Federal Government failures to grant access to records or to amend incorrect records

Judicial Redress Act of 2015

- Legislative Action
 - March 18, 2015
 - Introduced in the House of Representatives [H.R. 1428]
 - Oct. 20, 2015
 - Passed House of Representatives on voice vote
 - Feb. 9, 2016
 - Passed Senate as amended on voice vote
 - Feb. 10, 2016
 - Amended measure passed House of Representatives on voice vote
 - Feb. 12, 2016:
 - Presented to President

MUTHENTIEATED U.S. GOVERNMENT INIONMATION GPOJ
H. R. 1428
	One Hundred Fourteenth Congress of the United States of America
	AT THE SECOND SESSION
	Begun and held at the City of Washington on Monday, the fourth day of January, two thousand and sixteen
	An Act
	To extend Privacy Act remedies to citizens of certified states, and for other purposes.
	Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
	This Act may be cited as the "Judicial Redress Act of 2015". SEC. 2. EXTENSION OF PRIVACY ACT REMEDIES TO CITIZENS OF DES- IGNATED COUNTRIES.
	 (a) CIVIL ACTION; CIVIL REMEDIES.—With respect to covered person may bring a civil action against an agency and obtain civil remedies, in the same manner, to the same extent, and subject to the same limitations, including exemptions and exceptions, as an individual may bring and obtain with respect to records under— (1) section 552a(g)(1)(D) of title 5, United States Code, but only with respect to disclosures intentionally or willfally made in violation of section 552a(g)(1) of title 4, and (B) of section 552a(g)(1) of title 5, United States Code, but only with respect to disclosures intentionally or willfally made in violation of section 552a(g)(1) of title 5, United States Code, but such an action may only be brought against a designated Federal agency or component. (b) EXCLUSIVE REMEDIES.—The remedies so forth in subsection subject to the same imitations, including examptions and excep- tions, as an individual has and is subject to under section 552a of title 5. United States Code, when pursuing the civil remedias described in paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a). (d) DESIGNATION OF COVERED COUNTRY.— (1) IN GENERAL—The Attorney General may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of Homeland Security, designate a foreign country or regional economic integration organization, or member country of such organization, as a "covered country" for purposes of this section if—
	(A)(i) the country or regional economic integration organization, or member country of such organization, has entered into an agreement with the United States that provides for appropriate privacy protections for information shared for the purpose of preventing, investigating, detecting, or prosecuting criminal offenses; or

International Data Transfer Options

- Although some confusion post-Schrems, transfers outside EEA also lawful where:
 - parties have signed model contractual clauses approved by EU Commission
 - approved binding corporate rules
 - data subject expressly consented to transfer freely given and informed
 - other statutory exceptions include:
 - necessary to perform a contractual obligation to the individual
 - necessary for company's compliance with a legal obligation
 - necessary for company to establish or defend its legal rights or
 - necessary for reasons of substantial public interest

Our Global Reach

Our Locations

Africa
Asia Pacific
Europe
Latin America
Middle East
North America

Dallas
Dubai
Frankfurt
Hartford
Houston
London

Los Angeles
Miami
Moscow
New York
Orange County
Paris

Philadelphia Pittsburgh Princeton San Francisco Santa Monica Silicon Valley

Singapore Tokyo Washington, DC Wilmington

THANK YOU

This material is provided for your convenience and does not constitute legal advice or create an attorney-client relationship. Prior results do not guarantee similar outcomes. Attorney Advertising. Links provided from outside sources are subject to expiration or change.

© 2016 Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP